

What's Coming Up? Sept. 17-21, 2007

Dear Parents,

We have ended our second week of school. We enjoyed the cooler weather. It was much easier to concentrate! This past week we had fun learning about one another and the teacher. We also read several books concerning feelings, teasing, and being accepted as all being different but a part of the same group. The students also had a chance to meet their prayer buddies (4th graders) on Thursday and had a wonderful time. I think we would all agree that our best day was today, when we had our popcorn party for good behavior! This class is WONDERFUL! I can't wait to brag about them to you on PIE night! I also told the students a funny story titled: The Huckabuck Family and How They Raised Popcorn in Nebraska and Quit and Came Back.

We spent a lot of time this week learning different routines. Thank you for signing the notebook each night and checking the yellow homework folder. This is so helpful for communication. Now that the students have settled into their routines, I am anxious to get started on following a schedule next week and jumping into our curriculum. You will receive a schedule and information about the curriculum on Parent Info. Night, which is Tuesday Sept 18th.

I will be posting this note online starting today, so check it out on our OLG website. You will also discover fun links that support our curriculum.

Please contact me if you have any questions or concerns. Remember: my main form of communication is through emails and voicemails. I am not an early bird, so you probably won't ever catch me here early, but I usually stay after school fairly late, so if you ever want to drop in, I am available. Have a wonderful weekend! Blessings to all!
